1: Roth, H. Ling. The Aborigines of Tasmania. London: Kegan Paul, Trench, Trübner and Company, Ltd., 1890.

Pp. xxvii, 224, CX; author assisted by Marion E. Butler; chapter on the osteology by J. G. Garson, M.D.; preface by Edward B. Tylor; 21 plates; 6 appendices; index.

Yale: Nkd95. T. 890r.

[KS: A classical treatise containing recorded knowledge on the extinct native race of Tasmania. The author painstakingly searched in all likely quarters for notices scattered through voyages, histories, colonial documents, and other sources from which first hand information, however fragmentary, could be obtained. It is unfortunate that this valuable book which is of great anthropological interest was printed in a limited edition.]